Judge Halsey has charged a special grand jury in Campbell County to investigate alleged fraud and irregularities in the conduct of the primary in that county. The Judge charged the jury that the purity of elections was more important than the result of the contest. The bill for contest was dismissed on the motion of the complainant's counsel.

Governor Byrd is endeavoring to lower the cost of gas in Virginia. He has given much study to the question and has compiled the sale price of other states for comparison. Users of gas will applaud his efforts.

The Republicans of Buckingham County are called to meet at Odd Fellow's Hall, Dillwyn, Va., Tuesday, Sept., 20th, at 10 o'clock A. M. to consider naming candidates for county and district offices. We hardly think that when 1800 democrats have pledged themselves to vote for the nominees of the primary that no independent or republican would care to offer himself as a candidate.

McLean House

Appomattox Courthouse is only two miles northward on an excellent road from the Norfolk-Bristol highway that passes through Farmville and Lynchburg. You never would know it, though, for on the more traveled branch of the thoroughfare there is not a line to insorm you that you are within a five-minutes run of the place where the Confederacy died. Visitors to the old courthouse are numerous as it is; they would be quadrupled if a sign were placed at the crossing telling them how easily they can reach the village.

Every man who goes to Appomattox has his emotions deeply stirred. All the sites are simply but adequately marked. Only two occupied residences remain—one of them an inconspicuous building, the other the other the old-time opulence, but still preserving some of its dignity. A third residence, opposite the site of the old McLean house, is boarded up and is weathering fast. The old post-office and bar are mere shells. The jail stands, a story higher than in 1865. The courthouse itself was burned down five and twenty years ago. On its site is the most conspicuous object in the village—a rough speaker's stand and platform, as though all that men do at Appomattox now is to tell the tale of the past.

The McLean house itself, where General Lee met General Graat and surrendered the Army of Northern Virginia, was torn down in 1892 to be transported to Chicago, in order that it might be re-elected there for the Columbia exposition. The bricks were carefully piled. The woopwork was stacked. Even the lathes were made ready for the journey. And there in the yard they have stayed. When the plan for their removal was abandoned, for some reason, rain and sun did the rest. Scarcely a timber remains without decay. The yard, the house-site, even the foundations have grown up in a jungle that disgraces not Virginia alone, but the nation as well. It is one of the most sacred spots in the western world—and it is left as though it were the shuned site of an abandoned pest-house

If any plans for reconstructing historic places in Virginia, the building of an exact duplicate of the McLean house should come high on the list. Abundant photographs exist to make precision easy. The interior of the room whose Lee met Grant was well-skirtched at the time and can be reproduced with measurable accuracy. The front of the house, at least, could be faced with original brick. Twenty thousand dollars probably would replace the structure.

Thirty years ago, Virginia would have said "No" to any such proposal. The memory of the tragedy was still too bitter. Today, in longer view, though sons understand the poignancy of their fathers' sorrow, the incidents of Appomattox are altogether the most creditable chapter in American history. Where ended more honorably as clean a contest of conviction? Where had defeated men less reason to repine? Where were victors more magnanimous?

If Gettysburg has become a park, Appomattox should be a shrine—News Leader.

The pride of Appomattox County and town should take heed and erect a proper sign. The old courthouse is on the Lee Highway and the State keeps the road in good shape.

Care of Forest

At Appomattox High School, September 20, 2 P. M. a lecture on forestry will be given. The purpose of this beautifully illustrated lecture and moving picture of the original forests as they were when the white man took possession of them—how wild and beautiful and literally alive with wild life they were, and the changes which have come about as civilization has advanced. This will be a high class show brought to the state and its citizens free of charge by The Virginia Forest Service in cooperation with The U. S. Forest Service at Washington. The public is cordially invited by The Virginia Forest Service, University, Va.

Mrs R E Caldwell, Jr.

Fannie Willie Caldwell, wife of Robt. E. Caldwell, Jr., died suddenly at Baptist Hospital, Lynchburg, this Thursday morning at 12:30 o'clock. She was stricken down with gall stone trouble Sunday morning and suffered intensely until thei end came. She was on the streets of the town with her two small children Saturday apparantly in the best of health, cherry and happy. Few of her friends knew she was ill and her death is a severe shock to those who knew her best and loved her most. The music of her voice which often cheered her friends is now hushed and its melody and sweetness is now only heard among the angelic host beyond. Herself left an orphan—she was reared in the home of her brother —a joy and a privilege he prized highly. Now she is suddenly called away from two small children. Sympathy is expressed on every hand for her husband, Mr. Caldwell, and her children, Robert Holcombe and Larcarta Frances, 14 and 9 years of age respectfully. She was 45 years of age on the 29th day of May last. She is also survived by a sister, Mrs. C. A. Olliver, of, Charleston, S. C., and a brother, A. H. Clement, of Appomattox. She was born in Campbell County of Bettie and R. A. Clement, her family furnished soldiers for every war waged by the U. S., and was the 6th family to settle at Jamestown.

Mrs. Caldwell's funeral will be conducted from the Methodist church tomorrow, Friday, at 4 P. M., and interment will be made at Liberty cemetary.

Dan W. Johnson

Dan W. Johnson, 44, died Thursday at his home in Lynchburg. He is survived by his widow; a son, John D. Johnson, and two daughters, Mrs. J. E. Hicks and Mrs. W. B. Wingfield. His remains were brought here where he was reared and interred Saturday at the family grave yard on the Durham farm.

Birthday Party

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Turnes entertained a group of friends at a delightful party, Friday night, Sept. 9th, in honor of the latter's birthday. Music, dancing and games were enjoyed during the evening and at midnight a delicious supper was served. Among the guest were:—Mr. and Mrs. Lem Mitchell and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bill O'Brien and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Turnes and family, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Gordon and family, Mr. and Mrs Delbert Gordon and family, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Caldwell and family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gilbert and family, Mrs. Allen O'Brien and family, Mrs. Bob Morris and family. The Misses Mary Graves, Rachel Gilbert, Florence Gilbert, Lottie Lucado, Lucille Lucado, Ouida O'Brien, Hallie O'Brien, Edith O'Brien, Texas Burks, Madeline Bingham, Lennie Gordon, Louise Fletcher, Colyer Abbitt, Catherine Caldwell, Mildred Perdue, Virginia Alvis, Messrs. Watkins Abbitt, Burr Abbitt, Robert Abbitt, Jack Burks, Strode Burks, Bernard Burks, George Perdue, Curtis Bingham, William Bingham, Jones Caldwell, Howard Gilbert, Berkley Gilbert, Willie Conner, Jesse Fletcher, Block Martin, Clyde O'Brien, Lem Mitchell, Curtis Mitchell, Alex Harris, and Harry Williams.

The out-of-town guests were Mrs. Edward Van Dusen and son, Mrs. H. L. Daugherty and son, Bruce, of Youngstown, O., Miss Viola Woodson, Mr. Wyatt Mays, Mr. Thomas Richardson and Mrs. Claude Harvey and son, of Lynchburg.

"STANDARD" GASOLINE

BUICK for 1928

When Buick improves upon Buick —the standard for the year is set

Buick for 1928 introduces a higher standard of beauty and luxury than the world has ever known. Buick interiors are as modish as exquisite drawing-rooms—as harmoniously colored —and as comfortable. Buick's new Fisher bodies are low-swung without any loss of head-room or road-clearance.

And so, down to the smallest detail of construction, wherever refinements could be made, Buick has made them. Again Buick has improved upon Buick. Again the standard for the year is set.
